PREFACE

The Oriental Institute Library dates from 1919, the year James Henry Breasted founded the Oriental Institute at the University of Chicago. In the early 1940s it formally became a department of the University of Chicago Library, and in October of 1970 its collections, staff and catalog were moved to the University's new graduate research library for the social sciences and humanities—the Joseph Regenstein Library.

During its first fifty-two years, the Oriental Institute Library has become probably the finest Library in the United States for the study of the ancient Near East and Medieval Islam, and one of the few such collections of this stature in the world. In a very large measure, the Library's collections—and its card catalog, here made generally available to scholars—owe their present state of excellence to the knowledge and dedication of Miss Johanne Vindenias, Librarian of the Oriental Institute Library from 1924 to 1964.

The aim of the Oriental Institute Library has been to collect all useful printed material on every aspect of the Near East. Its 50,000 volumes and 220 current journal titles encompass the art, literature, philology, history, science and religion of the civilizations of the Near East. It covers the areas of Ancient Mesopotamia, Egypt, Palestine, Anatolia and Iran. Holdings are particularly rich in Assyriology, Egyptology, and in Islam (including Arabic, Persian and Turkish texts and translations). The range of imprint dates on materials acquired by the Library runs from the late 16th century to the present.

The card catalog, as it appears in this printed version, contains approximately 284,400 cards. In addition to main and secondary entry cards for the books, journals and pamphlets in the Oriental Institute Library, the catalog contains authority cards. These have been made for almost all Arab, Persian and Turkish authors, but particularly for Arab authors of the early and classical periods of Islam; in many cases, several authorities have been noted, with complete citations. Also interfiled in the catalog are series cards, book review cards, and journal analytics. The series card contents have been kept complete for all series dealing exclusively or primarily with the (ancient) Near Eastern field. For journal analytics, each article analyzed has been treated in full, like a book, making it accessible under both author and subject. Long runs of some journals have been completely analyzed, for example, The American Journal of Semitic Languages and Literatures, v. 1-58 (1884-1941); Bulletin de l'Institut français d'archéologie orientale, v. 1-40 (1901-1940); and Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache und Altertumskunde, v. 1-76 (1863-1940).

The catalog also contains many cards for books in other departments of the University of Chicago Library, some cards for books in other libraries in this country, and some for items noted in antiquarian catalogs insofar as these are concerned with the subject interests of the Oriental Institute. The Library has regularly received the Bibliographie papyrologique in card form from the Fondation égyptologique Reine Elisabeth in Brussels.

SPECIAL NOTES FOR THE USER OF THE PRINTED CATALOG

The filing arrangement is based on the Library of Congress system. The subject headings and subdivisions used are those of the Library of Congress with such modifications and elaborations as have proven useful to the staff of the Institute.

Under an author's name, personal or corporate, the filing arrangement is grouped as follows: the name as main entry (author of the work); the name as added entry (editor, translator, etc., of the work); and the name as subject entry (subject of the work).

When a call number — or the notation PJJ — appears in the upper left-hand corner of the card, it can be assumed that the University of Chicago Library owns the title; when there is no call number, it should be understood that the title may not be owned by the University of Chicago Library.

Subject headings appear in three styles: a) lower case type, b) lower case type preceded by a small solid block, and c) upper case type. A change-over from subject headings using the terms Mohammedan, Mohammedanism, etc., to the terms Islamic, Islam, etc., has not yet been completed. Users should be watchful and check under both the old and new terminology, particularly when consulting subdivisions of main headings.

The most recent Library of Congress romanization scheme for Arabic and Persian is followed. Changes from the older system to the new Library of Congress scheme have not been completed (e.g., the letter qâf may be found romanized either as q or as k). The process of bringing the Arab personal author entries into conformity with those of the Library of Congress is still continuing, but as the catalog is generously supplied with cross references from various forms of an Arab author's name, there should be little difficulty in finding the entry which is presently used.

Catalog cards for books in modern Turkish may not always distinguish orthographically between i and ı; this occasional inconsistency does not affect the filing.

(Univ. of Wisconsin studies in social sciences and history. vol. 6) A series of documents of the third century B.C. were discovered in 1915 at the site of the ancient Philadelphia. The Greek papyrus found formed part of the correspondence of Zenon, agent of Apollonius, manager in the name of Ptolemy II Philadelphus, of the economic life of Egypt. This study deals with only a part of the correspondence. Library of Congress H31.C7 no. 354 Copy 2 H1130.H3 1931a Copyright A 51011 (5-11) (303.2) 233.0832	DS41 Agriculture - Iran.
